E1 Introduction

This Appendix summarises the features and issues identified along the Kelling to Lowestoft Ness coastline, together with the setting and evaluation of objectives. The information presented in this Appendix is supported by Appendix D (Thematic Studies), which provides further details on each of the features.

The approach promoted by Defra guidance uses the principles of the Quality of Life Capital (QLC) approach, which was developed jointly by the Countryside Agency, English Nature, English Heritage and the Environment Agency to address environmental issues in decision-making. There is a focus on the services (termed as benefits) that a feature (e.g. a harbour) contributes to a location, a region or the nation, which helps clarify why that feature on the coast may or may not require protection. The understanding of why a feature is important to stakeholders, either locally or nationally, also helps ensure the process is transparent.

All the information has been recorded in a table to ensure clarity and transparency.

E2 Methodology

E2.1 IDENTIFICATION OF ISSUES AND OBJECTIVES

The Issues and Objectives Table was populated using information from the Theme Reviews and also inputs from both the Client Steering Group (CSG) and stakeholders (see Appendix B for further details on stakeholder involvement).

E2.2 OBJECTIVE EVALUATION

The relative importance of the objectives has then been evaluated, through answering a series of questions:

- At what scale is the benefit important?
- How important are these benefits to the people who use them?
- Is there enough of the benefit?
- Can the benefit be substituted?

Again this information has been derived from the Thematic Studies (see Appendix D) and has also involved the input from members of the CSG and Extended Steering Group (ESG).

E2.3 EXPLANATION OF COLUMN HEADINGS

(a) Feature

This is defined as something tangible that provides a benefit or service to society in one form or another. The feature will relate to the benefit(s) that it provides and SMP Policy will address objectives that relate to a feature.

(b) Issues associated with feature

This column identifies all issues associated with that feature. Issues may occur where either a feature is at risk from flooding or erosion or where management intervention could impact upon a feature.

(c) Affect policy?

This states whether the feature and its associated issues are of direct relevance to policy decisions; although an issue may be deemed to be of flood and coastal defence management relevance, it may still not affect policy e.g. offshore dredging or offshore fisheries.

(d) Why is the feature important?

For those features and issues which are deemed to affect policy, this column identifies the tangible benefits of the feature.

It should be noted, however, that 'coastal processes' do not constitute a benefit, for example, sediment transport maintaining a beach that provides both a natural defence to a village and a recreational amenity would not be considered a benefit; instead the benefits would be the residential provision of the village and recreation.

(e) Who benefits?

This column identifies the key beneficiaries.

(f) Objective

For each feature, where potential flood or coastal erosion related issues have been identified, a specific objective has been defined, based on the relevant specific issue and the benefits provided by that feature.

(g) Scale? (At what scale is the benefit important?)

This identifies the area over which the benefit has an impact of some significance, and has used the following classes:

International	Beyond the UK
National	UK
Regional	East Anglia
Sub-Regional	Typically the county within which the feature is situated, but for major coastal towns this is the town envelope and the immediate surrounding rural area.
Local	The immediate vicinity of the feature in question. For coastal villages and other rural communities this includes that part of the county, and may include the nearest town that provides main services such as shops, banking, leisure and recreational facilities.

(h) Importance? (Importance of these benefits to the people who use them?)

This considers the scale of the impact should that feature/benefit be lost tomorrow and has used the following classes:

High	Loss tomorrow would significantly influence stakeholder daily life/ work/ management practices (significance change to socio-economic status or quality of life)
Medium	Loss tomorrow would partially influence stakeholder daily life/ work/ management practices (moderate change to socio-economic status or quality of life)
Low	Loss tomorrow would have little or no influence on stakeholder daily life/ work/ management practices

(i) Enough? (Is there enough of the benefit?)

This identifies how scarce or rare a benefit is, at the scale at which it is important. As part of this, consideration needs to be given to whether other sites/areas can be found where this benefit is provided (e.g. inland or further along the coast etc.).

(j) Replace? (Can the benefit be substituted?)

This identifies whether the benefit could be replaced at the appropriate scale and considers the practicability of substitution: some benefits can be substituted whilst others can not, for example it may be possible to divert a threatened footpath and preserve the recreational benefit that it provides, whilst ancient woodlands are impossible to recreate within the timescale of the SMP.

Although the SMP can address whether it is technically possible to replace a benefit, it is not necessary to define whether it is operationally possible (i.e. the new site secured and the necessary funding in place), as this assessment is only used to evaluate the objective, not appraise policy.

E2.4 OBJECTIVE CLASSIFICATION

Using the answers to the above questions (g) to (j), the objectives have been broadly classified by theme and each feature/ benefit has been attributed a rank, which includes a letter and a number. The letter refers to the theme (see list below) and the number defines the relative significance, with 1 being the highest rank in each theme.

As it has been recognised that it is not possible to compare different types of features, e.g. environment site with housing, the ranking is specific to each theme:

- Housing (H)
- Commercial and agricultural property (C)
- Infrastructure (roads, pipelines etc.) (F)
- Natural environment (E)
- Heritage (G)
- Landscape (L)
- Recreation (R)
